Competitive advantages to develop aquaculture in Argentina

Argentina has the potential to consolidate its position as a significant player:

○ Extensive natural resources: excellent temperature conditions and wide availability of fresh water + extensive areas of mariculture.

○ Wide availability of raw material for aquafeeds (corn, wheat and soy).

○ Considered to be a strategic sector by the Government. New regulatory framework to promote the sector.

○ Renowned organizations and universities focused on developing the aquaculture industry.

Great diversity of natural environments suitable for aquaculture

Argentina has the potential needed for the development of salmonids and mussels on a large scale*

Sea temperature comparison
Ushuaia (Argentina) vs Tromsø (Norway)

The country has wide, suitable areas certified as zero diseases and antibiotic-free zones

Aquaculture is a strategic sector for the Government
